Working from home guidance

With lockdowns and restrictions affecting our most populous states, Comcare is reminding employers and workers about the need to manage risks for home-based work.

Health and safety obligations also apply to home-based work - a home workplace should meet the same requirements as any usual place of work.

Comcare has a range of practical guidance and resources to help ensure safe and healthy remote work:

- Working from Home guide for employers
- Working from Home guide for employees
- Working from home or remotely - guidance and checklist
- Looking after your mental health - fact sheets
- WHS duties and risk management
- Maintaining a COVID-safe workplace

Training and education

Workers, managers, and supervisors are encouraged to complete our self-paced online learning on how to safely wear face masks and maintain a COVID-safe workplace.

Safety and prevention in a pandemic - PPE, Facemasks (4-minute micro-learn video)

Managing work health safety (WHS) risks related to COVID-19 (available on Comcare LMS)

These and other online courses are freely available and can be accessed from our learning management system, Comcare LMS (login or create an account). All of Comcare's education and training products are also listed on our website.

Reminder: Employers are required to notify Comcare of all COVID-19 cases that are work-related, including cases acquired while working overseas, and should follow the public health advice in their jurisdiction.

Comcare will continue to monitor the evolving COVID-19 situation and issue further guidance as needed.
