1. STATISTICAL ASSURANCE EXCEPTIONS

1.1 The purpose of this document is to provide a collation of Stage Two statistical assurance exceptions as part of the 2022 external statistical assurance of Senate ballot papers. This document should be read in conjunction with the External statistical assurance of the Senate ballot papers: Detailed report and statement of outcomes, dated July 2022.

STAGE 2 EXCEPTIONS

1.2 The Stage Two assurance testing compared the physical ballot paper to the electronic data used in counting, contained in the Australian Electoral Commission's (AEC) Ballot Paper Reconciliation System (BPRS). The second stage testing assessed whether:

- the electronic preference data file was an accurate reflection of the preferences recorded on the physical ballot paper; and
- the interpretation of voter intent aligned with AEC business rules as stated in the Ballot Paper Formality Policy and Ballot Paper Formality Guidelines.

1.3 For Stage Two assurance testing a total of 33 exceptions were identified. These exceptions related to the accuracy of the electronic preference data file (used in counting) and the interpretation of voter intent. Determination of voter intent should be in line with the AEC business rules as stated in the Ballot Paper Formality Policy and Ballot Paper Formality Guidelines.

1.4 The 33 exceptions have been determined and classified in accordance with the approved assurance methodology. The classification of exceptions is outlined in Table 1. An additional classification of exceptions has been included in the table below to reflect the assurance findings. The categorisation of statistical exceptions now includes where an incorrect preference type (including related preferences) was admitted to the count.

Table 1: Categorisation of exceptions related to the interpretation of voter intent

Categorisation of exceptions used in statistical analysis	CSS state and territory Location								Total	% of total
	NSW	VIC	QLD	WA	SA	TAS	ACT	NT
Voter disenfranchised where a vote is recorded as informal when the voter expressed a valid preference(s)	2	2	1	1		1	2		9	27%
Above the line voter preference sequence was broken too early within the first six preferences	2	2		1	1	2			8	24%
Above the line voter preference sequence was broken too early after the first six preferences		1	1		1				3	9%
Below the line voter preference sequence was broken too early within the first twelve preferences		1		1				1	3	9%
Below the line voter preference sequence was broken too early after the first twelve preferences						1			1	3%
Voter preference sequence was broken too late (additional preferences were recorded)	1				1	1			3	9%
Vote recorded as formal when it should have been informal	1	2			2				5	15%
Incorrect preference type accepted	1								1	3%
Total exceptions related to the interpretation of voter intent	7	8	2	3	5	5	2	1	33	100%

1.5 Of the exceptions used in the statistical analysis, 27% related to where a voter was disenfranchised from the election. Another 24% related to where the ATL voter preference sequence was broken too early within the first six preferences. 15% of exceptions related to the counting of an informal vote (i.e., where vote was informal and should have been excluded from the count).

2. VOTER DISENFRANCHISED

2.1 A voter is disenfranchised when a vote is recorded as informal when the voter expressed a valid preference(s).
